

Gregory E. Smoak, Associate Professor of History at University of Utah specializes in American Indian, American Western, Environmental, and Public History. Between 2102 and 2023 he also directed the University's American West Center. He completed an MA at Northern Arizona University and a Ph.D. at the University of Utah. He has taught at Colorado State University and the University of Minnesota. He is the editor of Western Lands, Western Voices: Essays on Public History in the American West (University of Utah Press, 2021) and the author of Ghost Dances and Identity: Prophetic Religion and American Indian Ethnogenesis in the Nineteenth Century (University of California Press, 2006) as well as a forthcoming environmental history of Little Bighorn Battlefield National Monument. Smoak's association with American West Center began in 1988 and has included projects with the Shoshone-Bannock Tribes, the Ute Mountain Ute Tribe, the Big Sandy Rancheria of Western Mono Indians, the Navajo Nation, the Nevada Indian Commission, and the Utah Division of Indian Affairs. He is currently the Past-President of the National Council on Public History and has served on numerous committees for professional organizations including the NCPH, the Organization of American Historians, International Federation for Public History, and the Western History Association.