

Joy Pierce is Associate Dean for Academic Affairs in the College of Humanities and the University of Utah. She is also Associate Professor in the Department of Writing and Rhetoric Studies, and an affiliate in the Center for Latin American Studies.

Her research foci are digital divides and digital literacy. She employs cultural studies and contemporary social theory through a critical pedagogy lens to study underrepresented populations coming to information communication technologies (ICTs). She has studied the theories of qualitative research methods extensively, and is a methodologist specializing in ethnographies (auto, performative, participation action research). Her work has led to guest speaking at professional meetings and in the media, and include Silicone Slopes, Mozilla Foundation, University of Utah Humanities Alumni Group in Costa Mesa, CA, and National Conference of Editorial Writers.

Dr. Pierce has presented research papers at regional, national and international conferences; published in communication, sociology and qualitative research method journals; and published a book titled Digital Fusion: A Society Beyond Blind Inclusion (Peter Lang, 2015). Her second book, titled Autoethnography: Beyond the Self is due out in 2019.

As Associate Dean for Academic Affairs, Dr. Pierce supports the Dean in providing overall administrative leadership for academic matters, including curriculum, strategic planning, faculty development and support, and faculty recruitment and retention. In addition, she has initiated the College of Humanities Diversity Task Force, and is Deputy Title IX Coordinator for the College.
